

As a supporter of the Egypt Exploration Society you directly contribute toward our ongoing mission to support and promote Egyptian cultural heritage. Your generosity ensures that research is not only maintained, but that a framework for publication and dissemination is provided. Your support is critical for the continuation of this mission and to ensure the survival of vital records for future generations. Our educational workshops ensure that the students of today become trained and responsible scholars of tomorrow.

Your help means that the cultural heritage of Egypt will be preserved for posterity.

Sadly, irreplaceable archaeological remains continue to be lost or damaged as land becomes more and more valuable, environmental pressures increase, and looting continues. But teams funded by your donations are working harder than ever to recover ancient material and information before it is lost entirely and to work closer with local communities to improve engagement and awareness.

Not just anybody would choose to support archaeological research and collections, so being a member of the Egypt Exploration Society means that you're now a vital part in our special community committed to the future of Egyptian heritage.

As well as the good feeling you'll get knowing that you're helping to protect Egypt's unique heritage, we'd also like to say "thank you" for caring by sharing a few privileges with you:

3. Exclusive access to our world class collections

The Society's library remains one of the leading Egyptological libraries in the UK. With around 20,000 volumes all on open shelves, our Reference Library is free to access for members of the Society during opening hours (check our website). Our collections specialise in Egyptian and Sudanese archaeology and language, as well as the history of Egyptology, and early exploration of northeast Africa. We also have our Lending Library consisting of selection of up to 500 Egyptological books that are available for EES members to borrow. We're sure that you will find plenty to interest you, and you can search our collection before your visit here: <https://www.ees.ac.uk/library>. If you can't make it to the library then drop us an email with your request to library@ees.ac.uk and we'll see what we can do to help!

4. Meet the experts

As well as publishing the results of our research, we also share them via events including study days, lectures, conferences and workshops. Members can purchase discounted tickets to these events – and some are even free. Event topics include our archaeological work supported by members as well as research in our library, archive, and papyrology collections. If you're not able to get to London or Cairo then not to worry, we have plenty available in our online programme, including our online courses available at a half-price rate for members. You can also see regular research updates on our website's Collection Highlights and news pages. Find all of this here: www.ees.ac.uk.

5. Special connections

Our supporters come from all over the world and many different backgrounds, each one of them committed, like you, to the future of Egypt's heritage. You're now part of that special community and can keep track of work you support by following the projects on our website, or on social media (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram). Tell your friends about the work you are involved in and recruit the next generation of members too. You're always welcome to visit the EES Learning Hub in London during our opening hours to meet with friends and colleagues. And if you're out in Egypt, make sure you drop by our Cairo office or one of our fieldwork teams!

Thank you!
